

before any violence was offered to the Messengers. Albeit this proved contrary to the Libel, bearing that the perjur was Deposed in the lawfull Exercise of his office 6 March 1662 David Symson & others. And this Deponed was Justained to Exculpate from Deformant in the Execution of a Caption, that the Messenger Resisted Deposed, to tell the pannel what he was going to do, and beat them before they offered any Violence to him August 1662 James Emmonston of Cardon & his Brethren. But this Defense against a Deformant, that the pursuer did offer home to the pannel before he Endeavored to Execute any Rigour against him was Reported: in Regard that not only was such Execution of self Deponed Contrary to the Libel but the Messenger used no other Acts of Violence than what he might lawfully do in the discharge of his office.
 And if such a Deponed were Justained, our Lawd would always protest that what they did in Deformant Messengers executing Captions against them was in their own Deponed 4 June 1668 David Botson of Pongquid. The Deponed against a Deformant impounding of Oxen in September was Justained, that not only they were labouring in the plough several days before they founding, and some others in that country were then labouring their stubble ground; but also there were other poindable goods on the ground at the time 17 December 1700 Graham Lady Morphis & her son.

It is not a Relevant Deponed against Deformant in Executing a poinding, that the Debt to have been poinded for, was satisfied and Discharged. Because the Messenger was not bound to Dip upon the point of Right, but was in bona fide to poind by Virtue of the Letters; and if a Debt satisfied had been poinded for, the poinder would have been guilty of a Spuilzie 6 March 1662 David Symson & others. Nor was it Justained to Exculpate from Deformant in Exec-Executing a Caption, to offer to prove Scrips to of the perjur at whose instance it was Resisted, that he did not Deliver the Caption to the Messenger Complaining of Deponed nor gave any warrant to Execute the same, and to prove that payment of the Debt in the Caption was offered to the Messenger at his going to jail. 6 in Cal-uction, and that a fact the Debt is paid and Discharged by the Creditor. Because the Kings Advocate might pursue for Deformant, whether the Messenger had Deponed from the Creditor in the Caption to Execute it or not; and the Caption was a sufficient Warrant to the Messenger who could not be supposed to have put himself to the trouble of Executing it without Warrant, besides it is ordinary for one Messenger to give warrant to another to Execute. Nor was the Messenger bound to Notice the offer of payment of the Debt which he did not Discharge. And if such a Deponed were Justained, all pursuits of Deformant might be Ended, by making up and Retaking papers betwixt the perjur and his Debtor, to the prejudice of his Majesties Interest in the Escheat of the Deponed Messabell 1 December 1678 Dugood of Strickinhove, Cardon & others.

 Nor was this plea Received against Deformant of a Messenger, that he was going to poind upon Bellons raight at his own instance for a Debt due to himself. Because the Letters being always blank in the person Name to whom they are Directed, the Messenger might war-rably fill up his own Name therein, and so Execute the sentence pronounced by another Judge; and if he did Execute any wrong he was liable to a Spuilzie 6 March 1662 David Symson & others. See George McKennis Case part 1 tit. 26 54 word. Another Ordinary objection had to be Clear about the Reasonableness of this Condition seeing Messengers who are Judges impounding
